

Can A Social Security Lawyer Help With a Missed Hearing?

Q: Will hiring a social security lawyer decrease the chances that my disability claim will be denied?

A: Having a social security lawyer on your side does not assure that you will be awarded social security disability benefits. A social security lawyer, however, can assure that your claim will be correctly filed. Only a small percentage of disability claims are awarded after that initial and reconsideration review processes. You should file an appeal, if your case is not approved. To undergo the hearing process, it is recommended that you hire a social security lawyer. An attorney will know how to navigate the process and assure that all the appropriate paperwork and deadlines are met prior to a hearing. Additionally, if your claim is approved, a social security lawyer can help you with any issues regarding the date of onset and any back payments to which you might be entitled. A case can be approved without attorney representation. But many claimants are not willing to take a chance and prefer to have an advocate on their side through the hearing process.

Q: If you were absent from the scheduled hearing for a disability appeal, will you be denied benefits?

A: Being absent from a scheduled hearing is not recommended. If a hearing was missed for a legitimate reason, you should be able to reschedule. Emergency and unexpected circumstances are the only reasons that will be accepted. For example, you had a medical issue, were ill, had a family emergency or were unable to physically get to the location of the hearing. If you did not know you had a hearing because you did not receive notification, contact your claim representative immediately. Make sure that all representatives handling your case have your address and phone number during all reviewing processes. An advocate like a social security lawyer will make sure that you do not miss notifications, issues with your claim or a hearing date. A notice of hearing date is sent to your lawyer and you. The administration may dismiss your case, if you willingly failed to show up for your hearing. If your claim is let go, you will have to start the application process from step one. Consider seeking the counsel of a social security lawyer to assist you in securing a new date for your hearing and the process of the hearing itself.

Q: I am confused about the difference between social security disability insurance and supplemental security income.

A: Although both programs are run by the Social Security Administration and are offered to individuals who are injured, they are quite different. Individuals who have contributed to Social Security via their paychecks and, consequently, earned enough work credits are eligible for Social Security Disability Insurance. Supplemental Security Income is awarded to individuals who have limited income and financial resources. SSI can be awarded to individuals, regardless of their contributions while part of the workforce. Related Articles Veterans disability lawyer - Tampa social security lawyer - Orlando social security lawyer -

About the Author

See more on social security disability attorney, go by HillAndPonton.com.

Source: <http://DaNews4.com>